

MEDICAL COLLEGE.

OLD SAWBONES OPEN THEIR SHOP WITH A FLOURISH.

Mayor Workman Makes a Talk—The Professors do Not Take Kindly to Marriage—in a Flourishing Condition.

The opening of the fall term of the Los Angeles Medical College was yesterday celebrated. The full faculty and students assisted in the programme. This is the college's third year, and the faculty were congratulated all round upon the prosperous condition of the institution. Deha's hand was in attendance, and Prof. O'Neill, who arranged the exercises, had the building profusely decorated with Irish and American flags. Owing to the increased membership, the present building has been found to be inadequate, and a larger one is in contemplation. Mayor Workman's address was listened to with great attention, and frequently applauded by the large number of medical men and invited guests present.

The order of exercises was as follows: Music, orchestra; prayer, Dr. Howard; address, Mayor Workman; music, orchestra; address, Dr. Kurtz; address, Dr. J. P. Widney; music, orchestra.

Mayor Workman delivered the following address: Gentlemen of the University and of the College of Medicine, and Students of the College—It affords me great pleasure to be present and take part in the exercises of today. Having lived my life from boyhood in the city of Los Angeles, and having been identified with its growth all these years, it is to me a matter of personal pride when I see contending in our city the educational work of Southern California. Indeed it is far more than Southern California, for this must become the educational center of a region extending far eastward and southward into the heart of the continent.

The vast area of fertile land which here opens out to the sea, the character of the mountain chains and the peculiar distribution of mountain passes forcing the transcontinental trade lines southward, and the general semitropical climate, all centering of population here in Southern California which must in the years to come aggregate into the millions.

This population will be made up of the most intelligent and cultured portions of the migration from the East. With this certainty before us we do wisely to plan our educational work upon a broad and enduring basis. It must be broad enough to meet the needs of the great future which is before us, and it must be enduring enough to last through the ages of civil life which we as people are planning and working for.

In this educational work we have no jealousy toward, or hostility for, any other portions of the Pacific Coast. The territory is broad enough for us all. It is only a spirit of generous rivalry which animates us. We are glad to see them also build up institutions of learning and lay broad plans for the future, but we shall do our utmost to take and keep the lead.

Gentlemen of the College of Medicine, and of the other colleges of the University of Southern California, I wish you success in your work, and as a citizen of our fair city of Los Angeles, as well as in the official capacity which the voice of my fellow citizens has given me, I take pleasure in being with you.

To you, gentlemen of the faculty, I would say that I know of no nobler work than this in which you are engaged—training others to your places in relieving human suffering in the years when you shall have ceased from your labors. And to you, young gentlemen, who are entering upon the study of medicine, I would say that you are entering upon a high and honorable calling. I hope you may prove yourselves worthy of it. Again, gentlemen of the college, I wish you success in your work.

The Rev. M. M. Howard, president of the faculty, followed the Mayor in a short address, in which he cautioned the students about their future and gave them some excellent advice upon the subject of a successful medical career. He was followed by Prof. Widney, Kurtz, Wills and McCarthy in short addresses. Among the prominent persons present were His Honor Mayor W. H. Workman, Dr. M. M. Howard, Prof. Widney, Wills, Elizabeth Pollansbee, McCarthy, McGowan, Barber, Darling, Maynard and Kurtz.

Considerable amusement was created by the manner in which Prof. O'Neill had hung the portraits of departed members of the faculty. Some he labeled "quacks" and others in the market and others still married. There are now five female students, and Dr. O'Neill claims that the number would be considerably larger, if they did not get married as soon almost as they became members.

GOD OF LIGHT.

The Chinese are preparing for a Big First Night Week. Chinatown is alive with anticipations for the great Ah Dien festival which will commence on the 15th of this month. Preparations on a large scale are being made to celebrate the most important festival in the Chinese calendar. The feast lasts for three days and nights. This is the festival of the Ah Amehen, or God of Light. During this celebration no Chinaman tastes animal food and the services, which will be held at the Temple on "Nigger" alley, are open to the public. Over $10,000 have been collected by Chinese residents of this city to make the celebration a success. One Chinese firm alone contributed $150, and every man and woman in Chinatown is expected to contribute something. The ceremonies will be conducted by three Chinese priests and five colonial musicians who are being brought from San Francisco for the purpose. Upon the second day a dragon procession will form at the temple and march through "Nigger" alley headed by a band of Chinese music. The temple is being profusely decorated with lanterns, flags and bunting. A special offering of five silks and teas will be burnt to appease the Hi Maya, God of Darkness, there will also be a competition of Celestial beauty. The most beautiful lady will be publicly crowned, and a festival will be held in her especial honor. At this festival, which only the Chinese are permitted to attend, the Chinamen purges himself of any sins he may have committed in the interim, high-blinders forget their animosities and become brothers for the period with their deadliest enemies, and the occasion, though of a most solemn nature, is still one of joy and happiness.

THE SUPREME COURT.

Hong Di, the Murderer, Given More Time. Associate Justice Temple, having arrived yesterday, the full complement of Supreme Court Judges are now in the city. Gu Lung, the Chinaman convicted of murder in Fresno, yesterday had his appeal heard by the Court. The decision upon this appeal will be rendered the latter part of the session.

The case of Francisco Lesba, convicted in San Luis Obispo county, of having on the 24th of last June, assaulted with a deadly weapon, Quan Garlie, was also taken under advisement by the court.

Hong Di, the Chinaman who murdered Mrs. Ballou, in Colusa county, was allowed by the Judge to have a general thirty days' extra time, twenty days to file briefs in the case, and ten days to make answer. After the expiration of candidates for the bar, the court adjourned.

MAIN STREET CARS.

Proposed Extension to the Ballona Harbor Crossing.

At a meeting of real-estate owners interested in the extension of the Main and Jefferson street car lines yesterday the following gentlemen were present: K. M. Turner, T. C. Naramore, Dr. Wade, John White, William L. Malcolmson, J. Butterfield, Robert Turner, G. Krugen, A. Graves, William Jacoby and D. Fox of F. D. Lancaster & Co. They propose to extend the line to the Ballona crossing, or about two miles beyond the present Jefferson street terminus. The following committee was appointed to look upon the present owners of the road and ascertain their views on the extension: Messrs. Malcolmson, Turner, Naramore and White. The rest of the extension is still ADDITIONAL particulars of the sickening accident on the Chicago and Atlantic Railroad are given today. The car stove got in some awful work.

"The Express is not naturally fond of 'mysteries,' but is gaining an acquired taste. In its report of the Compton murder it scissored extensively from correspondence previously published in THE TIMES, but gives no credit.

THERE has been a falling off of more than $80,000 in the revenue from the manufacture of whisky in the United States and an increase of over $2,000,000 in that derived from beer. Is the American nation changing its drink?

It is believed that Springer, who brutally murdered his wife at Colton, about a year ago, cutting her throat and leaving the body in a room at the hotel, has been arrested in Wadsworth, Nev. If he should prove to be the right Springer, Colton is very apt to hang him.

WORD comes from Denver that the Alchison people have closed arrangements with Spreckels to run fast trains from Los Angeles and San Diego to Chicago and St. Louis, making the trip in four days. They are to be vestibule trains, too. It is pleasant to know that Los Angeles is counted in this arrangement.

THE recent rainfall and successive cloudy weather has been hard on the rain makers of Southern California. It catches them in the midst of the drying season, and a good many tons of grapes out in the trays will doubtless be damaged or spoiled. It is at such a time as this that an artificial drying apparatus comes into good play.

"A YOUNG LADY" writes to THE TIMES that for several weeks past a tramp has been patrolling streets in the vicinity of the Southern Pacific Depot, stopping ladies when he meets them alone and asking rather insistently for aid. These fellows often levy tribute by a sort of terrorism on unprotected women, and they ought to be sharply looked after. Their procedure is little better than robbery in the main, and sometimes it is worse than robbery.

JOHN STILLMAN, the conductor on the fated train which carried seventy-eight souls to death at Chatsworth, Ill., on the night of the 11th ult., has been visiting a brother in Grinnell, Iowa. Since the frightful occurrence, Conductor Stillman has lost forty-three pounds of flesh. His sleep is filled with dreams of the terrible wreck, and he has not known a night of restful slumber since the accident. He is off on a leave of absence from the road, which sent him away to go where he pleases, and stay as long as he wishes.

PEOPLE who are a little too ready to discredit startling news as mere "news-paper talk" and to decry the newspaper that presents it as sensational, can now see in the development of the Compton murder the utility of such talk. Persistent agitation has led to investigation, and investigation shows that the newspaper theory of the murder was correct. It turns out that the murdered man was a gambler, and perhaps the community does not suffer serious loss in his death, but nevertheless a dark crime has been committed, and the safety of the public demands that the murderer be ferreted out, if possible, and punished. THE TIMES was the only newspaper in Los Angeles to present the full facts relative to the Compton murder, and to persistently call for an investigation.

A Loud Call.

We are showing commendable enterprise in building hotels, street railroads, edifices for the W.C.T.U., Y.M.C.A., etc., but what are we doing to facilitate easy access between the older portion or business center of the city and the large and rapidly growing hill portion on the western part of the city?

Between Temple street and Seventh street, nearly or quite a mile, aside from the two cable roads, there is absolutely no thoroughfare or street for travel by which the citizens of the hill section can reach the business part of the city. Such a state of things should not be permitted to exist a day longer than necessary to tunnel or cut through some one of our streets running west from Fort street. First or Third street should be opened by some means so as to accommodate the citizens living on the hills. We are talking about expending thousands of dollars on parks, and yet we leave a large and very rapidly developing portion of the city almost as isolated and shut out from the business center as Pasadena or Anaheim.

The merchants and shopkeepers are interested in this matter for the reason that if this state of things is permitted to exist the citizens of the western portion of the city, in self-protection, will have to establish their own stores and shops, and hence a large trade will be diverted from a locality that might have retained it. Not only so, but a large number of people are now denied the privilege of attending public meetings at night because they have no thoroughfare by which they can drive or walk down town.

Such a state of things would not be permitted to exist in any enterprising city, and it is a great mistake, as well as great injustice, to permit it here.

If First street or Third street were tunneled there would be a great line of travel at once established between the business portion of the city and the western portion, as well as the outlying country.

A Probable False Sent.

The gossamer yarns emanating from the police force of San Francisco, and eagerly swallowed by a large portion of the press, relative to the escape of ex-Senator D. J. Creighton, his shadowy appearance at Santa Barbara, where it is said, he boarded the Queen of the Pacific, his mysterious disappearance from the steamer while yet far out in the San Diego Harbor, and the insinuations that he has landed safely in Ensenada, Mexico, we regard severely and as a whole as pure fabrication.

The probabilities are—as THE TIMES has already suggested—that Creighton is still in San Francisco. Chief of Police Crowley is reported to have said that he knew Creighton to be in Mexico. At the time Chief Crowley is said to have made that statement, the hiding jury-briber could not have reached Mexico, and several days had elapsed after Chief Crowley's statement was made public before the claim was set up that Creighton had landed at Ensenada.

Why did Chief Crowley volunteer that statement? He is not a volatile man. If he really knew that Creighton was in Ensenada one would suppose that he would have kept that knowledge secret until, in some manner, his capture could have been effected.

Again, how did the Chief come by his information? He could only have received it from Creighton himself or from his closest friends. The chances are that the San Francisco Police Department and other arms of municipal authority are favorable to the seclusion of Creighton. Creighton was only the stool pigeon of the bosses. The bosses rule the Police Department. They are all tarred with the same stick, and they cannot afford to have the arch jury-fixer brought to justice. Hence it is fair to presume that a false tale has been sounded that public attention may be directed away from San Francisco.

To Bolster a Rotten Scheme.

Since the recent stab at the prosperity of Southern California, perpetrated by a correspondent of the New York Herald, there has been a good deal of inquiry as to the animus of the attack. Judging from the tenor of the letter or dispatch in question, it appears that the writer's principal object was to discourage immigration to Southern California and direct it to Ensenada, Lower California. In almost the same breath with which he blew cold on this section, he blew hot on the Mexican colony.

When a slander becomes so outrageous that the papers of the Northern California are disposed to take up the cudgel in our behalf, we may concede that it is beyond the pale of civilization. It has been pretty well demonstrated that the correspondent in question owns a large acreage near Ensenada, and he therefore had a direct pecuniary interest in RENO (Nev.), Oct. 12.—[By the Associated Press.] The Deputy Sheriff of Churchill County arrived in town last evening, having in charge a man believed to be William Springer, formerly of Los Angeles. Springer was a saloon-keeper at Lodi. He married a girl in Livermore Valley, and the two went to Colton, where they stopped at a hotel. Springer registered himself and wife under assumed names. Next morning he was missing and his wife was found in her room murdered, her throat having been cut from ear to ear.

The man was brought to town last night. He says his name is R. Fleming. For some time past he worked for Dave Whitman, a large rancher in Churchill County, south of Wadsworth. The officers of that county watched him for several weeks, and finally believed they saw him on an unmistakable answer to the description published of Springer, for whom a reward of $8000 is offered. When Fleming left Whitman's employ, a few days ago, he prepared to leave the State. When he reached Wadsworth he was arrested. An officer is expected here tomorrow from Stockton, Cal., to identify him.

The husband had been absent from home some days, and the murders had evidently taken advantage of a knowledge of the fact and the circumstances. There was every evidence that a desperate struggle took place between the woman and the child, and that the woman's hands were cut to the bone in several places in clutching the knife of the assassin. Indians are strongly suspected to have been the perpetrators. There is great excitement over the ghastly discovery.

CLEVELAND (O.), Oct. 12.—[By the Associated Press.] Fire broke out this evening at the Northern Ohio Insane Asylum during the weekly dance of the more tractable of patients. While they were enjoying themselves the cry of "Fire" was raised, and flames and smoke suddenly poured into the dancing hall, creating a fearful panic among the 350 inmates. As soon as the first excitement abated the attendants made a courageous rush and moved the unfortunate who had been overcome. The bodies of six women who had been suffocated were recovered, and three more inmates were found in an injured condition.

Two of the dead were unrecognized. The others were Mrs. Margaret Pittis, Miss Jennie Hamm, Miss Evelyn Scribner and Mrs. Charlotte Knowlton. One of the injured may die. But for the heroic conduct of the physicians and attendants who rushed into the building to smother the flames and dragged the terror-stricken insane people from the hall, the loss of life must have been terrible.

The fire started in the laundry, a one-story building, which adjoins the wing in which the chapel is located. The prompt response and active work of the attendants prevented the

Mrs. Nelson Brings Suit Against Sharon's Estate for Millions—Chambers' New Project—Damaging Charges Against the Fire Department.

By Telegram to The Times.
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—[Special.] At the missionary meeting yesterday Rev. Mr. Masters of the Chinese Mission said that in January last a Chinaman named Wong Ping Ling asked his assistance in securing a Chinese woman, whom he desired to marry, from a house of ill-fame where she had been placed and detained against her will. Her escape was effected and a number of high-binders, incensed at the result, procured the arrest of Ling on a trumped-up charge of a murder committed five years ago.

Rev. Mr. Masters had every reason to believe that the high-binders had determined to swear away Ling's life, and was therefore much surprised when the latter was charged, after remaining a fortnight in jail. In investigating the manner of Ling's release he learned that Chan Yen, a friend of Ling, who told him the release was effected. He said that he had gone to the judge who was to try the case and asked how much it would cost to get Ling out. The judge replied that it would be $100.

Yen asked if an even $100 would be about the proper figure. The judicial dignitary replied that he thought that would do it; and Yen says that he paid over the money. "This was on Saturday evening," said Mr. Masters, "and Wong Ping Ling was allowed to go free on the following Monday morning. The records in the Police Court show that Wong Ping Ling was arrested for murder on January 30th last; on the following day the examination was postponed until February 1st; then to the 3d, and on that day to the 8th. On February 8th the case went over for one day, and on the 9th it was again postponed until the 10th, when it was dismissed by the judge without hearing any testimony. It is stated that the judge's name has been given to the Grand Jury."

ANOTHER COOKED OFFICIAL.
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—[By the Associated Press.] At the meeting yesterday of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Pacific Rev. T. N. Masters, superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Chinese mission, created a sensation by announcing that he knew the name of a police judge in this city who, for $100, had discharged a Chinaman accused of murder, and the name of a customs officer who, for $50, landed a Chinese female, knowing her to be destined for a house of ill fame. The judge's name has been given to the Grand Jury.

THE BAR ASSOCIATION AROUSED.
It is learned that at an informal meeting of the Executive Committee of the Bar Association on Monday last a discussion was held regarding the disclosures of embezzlement and jury bribery as recently made by the Grand Jury. President Wilson states that, from the sentiments expressed by him of the opinion that the services of the association will be tendered to the Grand Jury and to the District Attorney, offering cooperation and aid.

RAILSTON'S ESTATE.
His Widow Sues to Recover an Increase Sum.
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—[By the Associated Press.] Lizzie F. Ralston, widow of the once noted millionaire banker, has revived the controversy over the rich possessions which, it is claimed, were the joint property of William C. Ralston and his wife Sharon, by filing suit today in the United States Circuit Court against Frederick W. Sharon and Frank G. Newlands as trustees of William Sharon's estate. She asks for an accounting to her under the deed of trust executed to Senator Sharon by Ralston on August 27, 1885. She demands that these trustees account for all the partnership business and transactions of William C. Ralston and William Sharon, who were associated together under the firm name of William Sharon & Co., and she prays for an order on the court directing the sale of the premises, and real estate held by the trustees in such parcels as may be found necessary to pay her claims. Sixty-five different pieces of property in this city are mentioned in the pendens, which was filed by plaintiff in Recorder Spitt's office yesterday. Their value runs up into the millions. The list comprises the Palace Hotel, the Grand Hotel, and much of the surrounding property and real estate and improvements thereon.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT ATTACKED.
Before the Grand Jury today Frederick A. Gibbs of the Chamber of Commerce made an elaborate statement in writing concerning the inefficiency of the fire department. The gentleman had twenty-two witnesses to sustain his side of the case. He alleges that the appropriation of $130,000 a year is too much for the services rendered by the department, and he cites the comparative work done by the Chicago and New York departments. The jury promised to investigate the matter. It is quite possible that some indictments will be found in connection with the information.

A BEEF SUGAR COMPANY.
Chicago speakers today filed articles of incorporation of a company which will engage in the beef sugar industry. The company will commence operations with a plant having a capacity of making forty tons of sugar from 300 tons of beef, which will require the product of 7500 acres. Detroit Wins the Third Game for the World's Championship—Thirteen Innings Played—Events on the Turf.

By Telegram to The Times.
DETROIT (Mich.), Oct. 12.—[By the Associated Press.] It took thirteen innings to decide the third game between Detroit and St. Louis for the world's championship, and Detroit won it through wretched fielding on the part of the visitors. The Browns secured sixteen hits off Getzler, but for the most part they were badly scattered. Caruthers was remarkably effective, holding the Wolverines down to six actual hits and a base on balls. For the visitors in the second Comiskey and Caruthers hit safely. Foutz and Welch flew out. Comiskey scored on Robinson's high fly back of second, which could have been caught by Dunlap or Rowe, but neither made the attempt. Detroit led the game in the eighth. After two men had been put out, Ganzel reached first on Caruthers' wild throw. Rowe hit half way to Caruthers, and beat the ball to first. Ganzel kept on toward third, and scored on Comiskey's low throw to Latham.

50 Miles West of Riverside and San Bernardino; 100 Miles East of Los Angeles.

NO FOGS! NO HEAVY WINDS! 700 FEET ABOVE
A winter paradise! The home of the banana, date and orange. Wild dates in an adjoining cañon. Only spot in California where frost, fog and wind storms are absolutely unknown. The earliest season in the State. Best opportunity for men and women to make a fortune in a month to six weeks earlier than on the Coast. In a sheltered spot at the base of the San Jacinto Mountains lies Palm Springs, famous all over the southern part of the State as being the location of the Agua Caliente Springs, whose waters are an absolute specific for rheumatism and a host of other diseases. The soil of the valley is remarkably fertile, and it has been demonstrated that every fruit and vegetable will mature in this favored spot a month or more in advance of any other place. There is a

MAGNIFICENT WATER SUPPLY,

Derived from the Whitewater River and other sources, and a fine stone canal has just been completed. The eight miles in length, which conveys at all times an abundance of water, is laid in fruit and early vegetables will furnish an ample income. These lands are divided into town lots and 5, 10 and 20-acre tracts, and will be sold to the highest bidder, on easy terms.

KLAH'S CALL.

HE JUST DROPS IN UPON THE SEGREGATED "LUM."

And a Misunderstanding Arises-- Across the Rio Puerco at Last-- Mrs. Koski Made Happy--A Navajo Dainty--Again De Viaje.

VIEJO CUBERO (N. M.), Oct. 4.--(Staff Correspondence of THE TIMES.) Sunday night was a daisy. Not a breath of wind stirring, not a cloud in the sky, but the aldermanic moon and the inquisitive stars peeping in at our camp under that dratted rock. I had some little adventures for a cent that afternoon, which interested me considerably at the time, but made me laugh since. About 3 o'clock my old friend Klah (the left-handed) brother of old Manuelito, late Chief of the Navajo Nation, came riding up with his boy. I had been pining to see him, and we fell upon each other's necks. He was very glad to see me, and at once made a dive for the pocket in which I invariably carry tobacco. I am methodical in one thing at least, and that is in my 16 pockets. Each has its inalienable uses; and Klah's memory was as solid as my system. He struck the correct pocket the first jump. I then "drug" a little box of pictures from my grip, and showed him a howling likeness of his comrade, Koski. Then I wanted a picture of his own herculean form. Klah has a torso that Muldoon might envy--a neck like a pillar of stone, a chest like a blacksmith's bellows, a back like the trunk of an oak. But he doesn't exhibit them for fun nor for instance, but for revenue only. His first remark when I proffered my reasonable request was: "Cien pesos, Klah." I was glad he hadn't raised on his price since the year before, and forked over the dinero cheerfully. But what a cross-eyed picnic it would be for photographers, the world over, if they had to pay their victims for a sitting. Doubt if they would take much stock in the Biblical allegation that it is more blessed to give than to receive.

Klah posed himself under the rock and let me take three or four pictures of him. Then he shook hands, remarked "Buena," and mounted a sudden thought seemed to strike him. He came back and said "peso," motioning in a wild-eyed way up the river. "No," said I. "Si peso, peso, peso," said Klah, in an athletic crescendo. "No," I said, in equally athletic italics. Then Klah rode up close, reiterating his demand of "peso" (a dollar). At the same time he pulled out a beautiful new Colt's six shooter about two feet long, caliber forty-four, nickel-plated from head to heel. He laid this across the saddle with the muzzle toward me, his right forefinger on the trigger and his thumb on the hammer. With his left hand he patted the shining barrel, remarking "peso" in a tone of voice which you could have heard a mile away, and which meant me. I wasn't deaf, and Klah knew I wasn't. It couldn't be that this cuss-tomer, whom I had known and treated for three years, had to hold me up. Yet it looked so. I thought I knew Klah; but pleasant recollections began to float through my mind of how, on the very day of my last visit to Manuelito, a year before, but only a year before, I had held up a young carpenter and shot him besides; and I began to feel not quite sure whether I knew Klah or not. He descended from his horse and came up to me, with his "gun" in the same uncomfortable position. I felt sorry for that revolver. It certainly couldn't have felt at ease, held so aloft by its stern, and looking at an object no more attractive than myself in my Eretalian sunset pants. I got hold of my own gun by the slack of its breeches, and, as Klah said, "Porque peso?" Klah said something about "peso por piñana," with a lot of other rot that I didn't understand, and again patted his gun. I didn't know "piñana" from Adam's mother-in-law, and informed the rampant Klah that I couldn't "sabe nada." Finally, seeing that I was prepared for a riot, he patted his gun away, climbed to the mansard of his horse and rode away. Loco, my Navajo comrade, took in the whole episode, but couldn't tell me what it meant. Next day he unloaded a few tons of Navajo grunts to Mr. Aldrich, who nearly laughed his head off, and then interpreted to me as follows: Klah had pawned something at Delancey, up the Puerco, for a dollar. He wanted me to pay him his beautiful revolver for a dollar, so he could go and get the other thing out of soak. And that was the entirely peaceful end of that blasted word piñana, which had so torn me up the back. Klah can consider himself apologized too. He is a gentleman and a scholar, and wouldn't hold anybody up for thirteen bits. That Sunday night we ferried our last meal across with the rope--and I tell you it wasn't so bad camping under a rock with a big sackful of Mrs. Mason's provender to eat. Loco didn't think so, either. It was the softest snap he ever struck, and a year of the same sort would have suited him to a T. About 9 o'clock that night, or 9:30, the light of our campfire loomed up so vividly on the overhanging rocks that I had to try an experiment, and gave the wide angle a long peep at it. Quien sabe how it will come out.

About 7 o'clock Monday morning I heard Doc's melodious toot on "yon side" of the Puerco, and I went down. The stream had fallen like our first parents, and Doc said Johnnie Mason was coming across for me with the buck-board pozo shortly. Sure enough, so he did, and directly he was at my camp, loading up the baggage. We made the crossing all right, though it was still pretty "rocky," and in ten minutes more I was making a famine at Mrs. Mason's table, while everybody was standing around admiring the magenta panorama on my apparel. We put in the rest of Monday pleasantly at Manuelito, going up again to visit Koski's family, admiring his herd of beautiful goats and sheep, hunting and photographing. Mrs. Koski wasn't at home when we called, nor was any one except the three tiniest Koskitos. On our way home, however, we met her, and tickled her all over by presenting her with a prairie dog. I had just killed. She borrowed my knife, sat down on the ground, cut a hole an inch long in the fat little rascal's belly, squeezed out his interior decorations much as you would disrobe the pulp of a grape, stripped every particle of fat from his domestic economy, and tucked it back into the cavity. She was grin all over--more pleased than if I had given her a sheep. Prairie-dog is a dainty dish for the Navajos, and I don't know that they are far "off." It will be a long day before I forget how good o.p.d., parceled with snow in a rusty powder-can, and smeared with the ashes of the grease-wood on which it was roasted, tasted to me one evening on the Rio Grande, above Barranca, N. M. Anywhere in the Navajo country after a hard rain you will be puzzled to see a lot of newly-dug little trenches, each a few yards long, and each terminating at the mouth of a prairie-dog's hole. The rain is a dead scoop on the fat little yellers; for soon as the shower commences, out turns the Navajo population, of ages from 1 to 90. They dig their trenches so that the rivulets will run down the p. d. holes. Don Señor Prairie Dog, curled in his nest, is suddenly astounded to find his basement flooded. He pops to the front door to see what in blazes is the matter, and why the dogged old city council doesn't build the sewers so they won't bust. No sooner does he show his head outside, than a dusky hand grabs him by the neck from behind, so that his formidable chisels of teeth no rule sunda. A quick twist, and his neck is no more use to him than two tails would be to a dog--his backbone is looking four ways for Sunday, and his butter-half of a carcass is tossed upon a pile of his defunct neighbors. And for sequel, what a howling banquet for two or three days in a hundred Navajo hogues! Having left Mrs. Koski to trundle home with her tit-bit, we came on to the mesa's edge and clambered down the cliff. During a little side expedition after cotton-tails, I was just about to put my hind foot on a flat rock, when my ears caught that unmistakable dry k-r-r-r which is more music to them than almost any other sound. A search in the vicinity raked up a mottled quadruple coil of mottled smoothness; and across it, like a lazy, light brown plate, the vibrant tail with its dry whirr. It would make a photograph that I'd be proud to get--and will, some time. We teased our victim awhile, watched the straight mouth open like the lid of a pot, the action throwing forward the fangs with their white muscles into plain sight. When the mouth is closed, the fangs lie flat along the roof, pointing backward. He gnawed awhile at my stick; and when he got too dispirited to amuse us any more, I slipped a buckskin thong around his neck, and brought him dashing home.

Arriving at the store, we cut off his head and buried it, and then evicted him from his prettily mottled skin. He was a small fellow, only about eighteen inches long, with three rattles and a button. (You see I'm not an artist at snake stories.) While the flaying process was going on, a group of Navajo squaws rode up, and we went out to meet them, leaving the skin to dry where they couldn't see it--for the shores is had medicine to all Navajos. Among the squaws was one very young and pretty little thing, who gave her name as Lupe Dubois. She is a daughter of Dan's, her mother being a Navajo squaw. Lupe was away from civilization awhile ago; and now has a cunning papoose. She let me lean it up against the side of the store in its queer Navajo cradle, and take a picture of it--while her less intelligent sisters looked on with stolid disapproval.

After awhile they all rode off, and I proceeded to wrap my snakeskin in a piece of paper. Just then Koski came out of the store and mounted his horse to ride off. I told him we were going away by the train that night, and he bade us a profuse adieu for him--in very disjointed Spanish. As he shook my right hand, he caught sight of the snakeskin in my left; and putting spurs to his horse, he rode off, holding his right hand aloft and aloof, and looking at it with one of the most laughable expressions I have ever seen on an Indian face. In front of the store, also, that afternoon, we saw a pair of padios none the less pretty because all the actors were dusky skinned. Three women--one young, the others of middle age, were trading, when a middle-aged buck came riding in from the south. They were relatives, long parted; and as soon as the women saw his horse's nose through the door, they broke from the store and ran out to him. He lifted his long arms, and gathered all three under his blanket, his arms about their necks; and there they stood sobbing softly, their heads covered, while he looked down tenderly from his superior height as if he half wished for the moment that he were a squaw, too, so that he might weep with them. If they had been white people, we would have felt the indecency of staring at their grief; but as they were poor barbarians we stood and watched them, feeling, nevertheless, all the time a little thrill from that one touch that makes the whole world kin.

And so the hours slid by. We acquired some more Navajo jewelry and more of their incomparable blankets, in the latter of which I packed my stone treasures from Zuñi, to lie at Manuelito till our return. My eye! but won't the porter kick when I get out and come back with that gunnysack crammed with two hundred weight of rock? Methinks I had better be saving a good, round peso aside now against the wrath that is to come.

The train was a little late that night, and it was 10 o'clock before we were all by our lonesomeness in a fine day coach, bound to get to Grants in a couple of hours. The conductor informed us, however, that as the bridge at Laguna was not yet fixed, the train would lie at Coolidge till after breakfast. So we subdivided a berth and slept like seventeen sticks.

When we rolled out at Coolidge in the morning for the prospect, who should we meet upon the platform but S. P. Rees and wife of Los Angeles going East for a visit. We had a jolly chat with them over a comfortable breakfast, and continued it on the cars until a little later we dumped our impedimenta at Grants, to drop into the hospitable arms of Emil Bibb, one of the pleasantest acquaintances formed in all my 5500-mile tramp of three years ago.

Flood Horrors in Mexico.

There has been great destruction of property in Guerrero and Mier, Mex., near the Rio Grande, by the overflowing of two rivers. In Mier, which is built on the banks of the River Mier, 200 houses were destroyed, and many were completely washed away. The town of Guerrero, which is situated on the banks of the Salado River, was inundated, and about fifty houses were either completely washed away or damaged. Both these rivers rise in the Lampasas Mountains, and were swollen by a great waterspout which fell Friday, and did much damage to the Mexican National Railroad.

Smother Him in Peanuts.

(Brooklyn Citizen.)
If George Francis Train is going to run riot in print again it is time something desperate should be resorted to. Mr. Train is very fond of peanuts. A fund might be started to keep him so well supplied with that nutritious article of food that he would have time for nothing but eating.

Real Estate.

For a Sanitarium

No spot in the country offers so many natural advantages as that slightly bench of land in the Duarte commonly known as the

"GEARY RANCH."

There is here found a rare combination of those sanative conditions indispensable to the successful treatment of throat and lung affections. The location is absolutely above the extreme fog limits. The chill of night and early morning hours is tempered by radiated warmth from the mountains that tower behind in close proximity. The heat of day is moderated by the natural conditions insured by an elevated and exposed situation. The magnificent mountains in the rear afford an effectual barrier against north winds, and from their deep ravines an abundant supply of pure spring water is obtained. A background of rugged mountains, a broad expanse of fertile valley below, with a strip of ocean shimmering beyond, combine to form scenery at once grand and beautiful in its diversified loveliness. The site is within a half hour's drive from the railroad station and over an excellent road of easy grade, by groves and vineyards and through a pretty live oak canyon in which not a trace of sand-wash is visible.

This valuable property, comprising in all 140 acres, will be sold as a whole, or a site for a sanitarium or mountain hotel. Can be secured on very advantageous terms, providing the parties will erect thereon buildings of a certain value.

Bottled Italianized Air—Thirty Thousand Persons Using the Ammoniaphone—Wonderful and Mysterious Results.

(London Truth.)

"Bottled Italianized Air for the Voice" reads much like "Bottled Bosh," but in these days of scientific discovery it is unwise to dismiss any invention with a sneer and without a trial, and certainly I witnessed at St. James's Hall a short time ago an illustration to the point. Miss Carlingford, one of the ladies from the Opera Comique, who conceives that her voice has been greatly benefited by the "bottled air" in question, issued about 2000 invitations to various scientific and musical people, and organized a concert at St. James's Hall.

The point of this "invitation" concert was that all the singers used "bottled air," and Dr. Carter Moffat, the "bottled air" genius, himself appeared between the parts, holding the mysterious "Ammoniaphone," or bottled-air machine, a long silver tube, which he flourished in the face of the audience, while he described its virtues with considerable animation and a robust faith, which at last became rather contagious. I confess that at first, much as I can swallow in the way of scientific boasting and assertion, I could not swallow the bottled air theory.

I turned the pages to discover who Dr. Carter Moffat was. I soon found that he was all right. For seven years he was first demonstrator at the Royal College at Edinburgh, besides being professor of chemistry at Glasgow. He went out to examine mines and mineral earths for the Italian Government some years ago, and so valuable were his services that he was awarded a gold medal at Turin, and received a decoration of honor. It was at that time he carried out his experiments on the air of the Abruzzi regions with the startling effects which have ended in the invention of the ammoniaphone.

The interior of the ammoniaphone is, I am told, occupied with wicks saturated with peroxide of hydrogen and free ammonia, and by air-chambers, regulating the transmission of these gases through a little mouthpiece into the lungs. A couple of inhalations will suffice for a test. It was, I confess, with profound skepticism that I placed the little silver mouthpiece to my lips and drew a deep breath. A strong, choking, burning flavor of peppermint nearly took my breath away, but it was not unpleasant, and I persevered, alternating each pull with a good gasp of common air to follow. I had previously been asked to say a sentence or two in my natural voice, and after two or three pulls at the ammoniaphone, I was requested to repeat the same words, without using any extra exertion. I was really startled at the involuntary loudness of my own voice, and a friend who accompanied me, and who was a greater skeptic than myself, fairly burst out laughing at the result. Dr. Carter Moffat smiled benignly, and told me that he had now 30,000 persons using the ammoniaphone with the same results. Marie Roze, Lady Macfarren and a host of others are ready to bear witness to benefits received, and, of course, their letters are printed in the pamphlet. The ammoniaphone also claims to be of use in bronchitis, and almost a specific in asthma. Dr. Carter Moffat is, perhaps, a little in danger of claiming too much for his curious invention, but his labors and sacrifices have certainly not been altogether in vain.

San Diego, Cal.

The postoffice of this city has about suspended operations, owing to the parsimony of the Administration in refusing to allow sufficient compensation for clerks. All the experienced hands have quit, and Postmaster Jorres is the only one in the office who knows the boxes. Five days' delayed mail arrived last night, and he says it will be absolutely impossible to distribute it. The floor is stacked up with sacks full of letters and papers which have been here for several days, and the whole office is in a deplorable condition. An inspector is in the city at present and telegrams have been sent to Postmaster-General Vilas in regard to the matter, but it is not probable that any relief will be ordered for several days. In the meantime the clerks which arise from the citizens generally who are unable to get their mail are both loud and deep, and San Diego would not be a healthy place for the Wisconsin statesman to show his head in at present. The delivery system was inaugurated several days ago, but does not relieve the pressure very much at the office.

California Raisins.

(Chicago Herald.)

Raisin making was first attempted in California nineteen years ago. The following year about 1500 boxes were made, and the industry has rapidly progressed. Ten years ago the crop amounted to about 40,000 boxes. This year the crop is estimated at 200,000 boxes.

An Opportunity Seldom Offered.

The Santa Fe Railroad Company are largely interested in the new town of Santa Fe Springs, at Fulton Wells. Consequently, all the projected improvements will be rapidly pushed until completed. This is the only resort within seventy miles of Los Angeles where first-class medicinal springs are found. It will, therefore, always be filled with health-seekers. The enterprising firm of Hyram & Poindexter have secured 200 acres immediately adjoining the best side of this town of Santa Fe Springs, and will sell no town lots at all. They offer it only in blocks of from four to ten acres, at low acre prices, on easy terms. This gives buyers an opportunity to make handsome villa homes or small farms, just beside a railroad depot, handsome new hotel and other extensive improvements. Any purchaser of this property can double his money by subdividing into lots. Call on us for maps and further particulars. Hyram & Poindexter, 27 West First street, Los Angeles.

Nature's own remedy, made from roots gathered from the forests of Georgia. The method by which it is made was obtained by a half-breed from the Creek Indians, who inhabited a certain portion of Georgia, which was communicated to one of the early settlers, and thus the formula has been handed down to the present day. The demand has been increasing until a $100,000 laboratory is now necessary to supply the trade. A foreign demand has been created, and enlarged facilities will be necessary to meet it. This great

BIG FEES.

FORTUNES FOR SERVICES RENDERED IN LITIGATION.

Large Amounts Paid in Will Cases—Sums Received by Patent Lawyers—Suing a Corporation—Lawyers Who Are Regularly Salaried.

(New York Sun.)

"Big fees," said a veteran lawyer, "are generally the private concern of the client who pays them and the lawyer who receives them. If Dorsey saw fit to pay Col. Ingersoll $100,000 for his services in the star-route cases, Dorsey probably got the worth of his money. I have observed that lawyers do not care to measure the value of their services by the amount of the verdict except when they win. It is not an unfounded rule that lawyers' fees should be governed by the importance of the interest involved. Mr. Tilden received a fortune for his services in railroad litigation and negotiation; but as long as those who paid the money were satisfied, I do not see whose business it was but that of the parties interested. Henry L. Clinton is reported to have charged William H. Vanderbilt over $200,000 in the Vanderbilt will case, and to have actually received $75,000. But there were millions involved in that case. It is a common thing for big lawyers to charge $100 per day for attendance in court.

"Big fees are common in will cases, but allowances by the courts of estate are now limited to $2000 a side. Those were halcyon days for the lawyers when the surrogate could divide the estate among the gentlemen of the bar, leaving the litigants in debt. In the Taylor will case, a few years ago, the lawyers not only got the estate, but actually left the widow in debt after selling her clothes. In the Parish will case Charles O'Connor received a small fortune. In the Hardin will case John K. Porter got, I believe, about $23,000. He represented the claim of the alleged widow, Henry Nicol has charged as high as $500 a day. George Ticknor Curtis had such a big bill in one of the celebrated india rubber cases that he charged $1000 for making it out.

"Many big fees have been received by patent lawyers. Prof. Morse spent a fortune in the courts defending his first patents, but he got it all back in the value of the patents. Every invention of importance has cost its inventor or owner dearly for legal service. Signal instances of this fact have been seen in the volcanic rubber, barbed iron fence, nickel plating, burglar alarm, sewing machine and other patent cases, in all of which fortunes were paid to lawyers. In such cases the labor of lawyers is enormous, the responsibility great, and the pay of course appropriate. Large, good patent lawyers get rich, but their brows are generally furrowed with care.

"Mr. Evans has had some very big fees from corporations, from will cases and long-contested suits. He could show the record of a great many $10,000 fees. When a suit has a hard case he does not hesitate at paying a few thousand dollars to a good lawyer. A poor lawyer is a very expensive luxury. When a suit with a good case has been two or three times to the court of appeals in consequence of his lawyer's blunders, he begins to think it pays to get a good one.

"Not long ago it was unlawful and unprofessional for a lawyer to have a personal interest in the case of his client. This was obviously unjust to poor litigants. If a man got injured on a railroad he was absolutely unable to get damages because of his poverty. It got to be proverbial that there was no use suing a corporation. The poor suitor was at a disadvantage. Now it is lawful and reputable for a lawyer to be interested in the case of his client, and to make his fees contingent upon success. By the operation of the law of self-interest the lawyer thus works harder than he otherwise would. Many poor litigants have in this way recovered verdicts who would otherwise have become vagrants.

"Many large corporations have salaried lawyers to look after their business. Judge Dillon left the bench of the United States Court to take a salary of $20,000 from the Union Pacific Railway Company. Dudley Field has had enormous fees out of the Erie Railway Company and the elevated railways. The lawyers saved the elevated railways about $1,250,000 in the tax suits with the city, as the courts cut down the bills about that sum. The counsel for large corporations like Trinity Church, the Equitable and Mutual Life, the Standard Oil Company, and in situations of like magnitude receive handsome incomes, and devote themselves largely to the business of one client.

"Lawyers like Ben Butler, Roscoe Conkling, Senator Edmunds or Judge Jere Black could fill volumes of records of big fees. There is, in fact, always a demand for lawyers who can earn big fees. There are so many novelties of the law, so many expedients and devices to suit new circumstances, that men of penetration and of skill in devising expedients can find plenty of scope."

A Stove Made of Paper.

In a New York shop window not long ago might have been seen an odd-looking kitchen range, with a bright fire burning. It looked like polished mahogany, but, as the proud inventor explained to all comers, was in fact made of paper, and was "absolutely inflammable." A reporter who paid a second visit found a hole in the window glass, and the frame blackened and scorched. The shop-keeper explained: "Tried to quicken her up a little with kerosene," he said. "Paid his rent and went away with his hand in his pockets. You'll find what's left of the stove outside in the ash barrel."

IMPORTANT

OWNERS AND BUYERS OF REAL-ESTATE!

THE OFFICIAL CALL LIST —OF THE—
LOS ANGELES
Real-Estate and Stock Exchange
—IS ISSUED DAILY—
For Free Circulation.

The CALL LIST contains descriptions of improved and unimproved real-estate and securities listed by authority, and offered for sale to bidders willing to pay a fair market price. These properties are bought or sold only on commission by responsible real-estate brokers, representation, fraudulent or defective titles, extortion in price, and the thousand and one tricks of unscrupulous and irresponsible dealers.

The principal function of the Exchange is to establish and maintain real-estate values in the mutual interest of both buyer and seller. This can only be accomplished by actually closing transactions in open session of the Exchange and making a public record of the bids, of the prices asked by holders, and of the sales, by which means stability is given to the real-estate market, and the fullest protection is extended to all parties concerned.

Those who have property for sale, listed on the Exchange, are guaranteed the full market value of their real-estate, of which they have no assurance without the facilities which a well-regulated Exchange always affords to investors.

Intending buyers are secured against extortion, by the daily publication of the Real-Estate Exchange quotations on all classes of property, without which information they are frequently induced to pay far more than the actual market value of the property purchased.

The rules and regulations and blank forms of the Los Angeles Real-Estate and Stock Exchange have been copyrighted, and all persons infringing such copyrights will be proceeded against according to law.

The lobby of the Board Room, at No. 154 South Spring street, next to the Nadeau House, is free to the public. Two sessions of the Exchange are held daily, at 10:30 o'clock a.m. and 3 o'clock p.m.

The Official Call List is distributed free by the Exchange messengers, or can be had free on application to the Secretary, at the office of the Exchange, No. 154 South Spring street, or to any member of the Exchange, to whom all intending investors or home-seekers are respectfully referred for full, accurate and reliable information as to values, terms and conditions of sale and all other details relating to the properties duly listed on the Exchange.

Compton.
STILL BELIEVE IT WAS A MURDER—PINK SOCIAL.

COMPTON, Oct. 9.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] The "gentle zephyrs" have been moving about rather lively in the past day or two.

The Comptonians are greatly agitated over what appears to have been a fearful tragedy, which was enacted at the Barbey estate, on the night of the 5th inst. During that night a barn was burned down there, and the next morning the partially charred remains of a man's body were found amid the ruins. No one is able to ascertain the identity of the unfortunate individual, as the body was so far destroyed as to render identification impossible. From certain manifest indications, there are very strong suspicions of foul play.

Since none of the Comptonians are missing, and since the man was evidently not of the tramp order, the current theory is that he was foully murdered, and then taken to the vacant barn, which was afterwards set on fire to destroy all trace of the dark crime.

Howsoever, "murder will out," was proven in this case. No one was living on the place at the time.

Our new blacksmith shop, etc., is becoming a reality. The prospective owners are erecting a neat two-story building on the west side of Wilmington street, near Lemon street.

Our new postoffice looms up grandly. Mr. Bently, the postmaster, has remodeled the vacant harness shop near the bakery, and he now has it fitted up very nicely. We rejoice that the post-office has been moved into the new building, as it is more convenient in its present location than formerly.

More new buildings are going up in our midst. Truly, Compton is growing, and its growth appears to be permanent. Outsiders are at last beginning to realize that the "Alkali Flat" is a very productive and otherwise important region, and that the "chills and fever" racket (which has so often been played upon the "tenderfeet" who inquire about our section) is naught more than a great canard gotten up from envious and jealous motives.

The "pink social" given by the Bijou Literary Society, in the school building, on the evening of October 7th, was a decided success. After an excellent literary programme, hot coffee and cake were served as refreshments. The majority of the members were pink in some way or other. Some of the young ladies were arrayed in pink gowns and caps, while the young gentlemen wore pink vests, neckties and caps. Quite an assemblage were out, and all vote that they had a splendid time.

On the evening of October 5 the M. E. Church was filled with spectators to witness the ceremony which united Miss Emma S. Bowser and Davis J. Moody in the holy bonds of wedlock. Rev. Mr. Knight of Grace Church, Los Angeles, tied the knot. The church was tastefully decorated with flowers, as was also the home of the bride's parents, to which the bridal party—accompanied by their numerous relatives and a few chosen friends besides—retired immediately after the ceremony. After the usual congratulations, etc., had been tendered the happy couple, the guests regaled themselves at a bountiful spread table. The wedding gifts were numerous and elegant, consisting of tableware, household furniture, etc. The bride is one of our most estimable young ladies, and is universally beloved; while the groom of the firm of Rector, Moody & Craig, is an exemplary young man.

The Compton Brass Band tendered a pleasant serenade to the parties before and after supper.

Lewis Moore and family have moved to Los Angeles, to reside permanently. By the way, it is the Y. W. C. T. U. which has purchased the four town lots from the doctor, and not the Y. M. C. A., as you printed it last week. The Y. M. C. A. have not yet organized here.

To give our neighbors some idea as to the value of Compton property, let me state that one gentleman here recently refused $15,000 for his farm of forty acres, while another refused $14,000 for his farm of fifty-five acres.

On the evening of the 3d inst. a reception was given in the M. E. Church to welcome back the pastor, Rev. T. S. Uren. Respectfully,
GEOFFREY GILBERT.

El Monte.

THE CAMP MEETING THINKS IT IS ON TOP.

EL MONTE, Oct. 11.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] I am informed that you got a disturbance in a camp meeting now going on in El Monte, this county, mixed with the Salvation Army "red coats." We have no objection to red coats, or any other coats that are fighting the devil let loose in this county, but we do not belong to them. Our meeting is held by the Southern California Holiness Association. El Monte has long been noted for its badness.

The facts are that a whisky seller, with a lot of toughs, came with eggs in their pockets and egged the servants of God while on their knees. One of them struck the preacher, and a volunteer young man knocked the rowdy about four feet over the benches. He then got up, and the gang left. The better class of citizens have rallied in the interests of good order. The young man who knocked the preacher went and paid a fine, then was arrested and paid another. Then he complained of the preacher, but finally came up, paid the costs, and withdrew the complaint. We have held meetings in all sorts of places for thirty-five years, and we must say we have in some respects seen the worst order in El Monte we ever saw. But now we have the best camp meeting order we ever saw, and a deep religious spirit pervades the community. The meeting will continue for a week or two yet.

A SECTION BOSS WHO IS A FACTOTUM.
LANG, Oct. 9.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] For the past eight or ten days there have been no section men on this section of the railroad. The Chinamen all quit. They said, "White man no like have Chinamen work." So the section boss has to be section boss, track walker, China herder and Chinaman all combined, and by this arrangement there is very little work done, and the track is getting in a pretty bad shape. I suppose the railroad company will put off sending men up here until they have an accident, and then they will send some "big man" up here to investigate.

The Sulphur Spring school has now enrolled upon its register twenty-five pupils, with an average attendance of about twenty-two.

[Scientific Journal.]
By a method of spectroscopic observation, W. N. Hartley has reached the conclusion that ozone is a constant constituent of the upper atmosphere, that it is present there in larger quantity than nearer the earth's surface, and that it is the cause of the blue color of the sky. Either in its gaseous form or condensed into a liquid, ozone appears of a deep blue.

Lamanda Park.
The railway from the Raymond to Lamanda Park, being about to be opened shortly and giving to this desirable and picturesque property exceptional facilities, a further addition has been made to the town lots, which are offered to the public on reasonable terms, also plots to suit the convenience of buyers for villa residences of from one to five or more acres, on the Rose avenue and other desirable situations.

Water provided for domestic purposes on reasonable terms. Plans can be seen and particulars obtained from the owners.

Important Notice.
Arrangements have been made to run a hack from Main and Spring streets to the Sisters' Hospital, where it will make connection with the dummy running to Ivanhoe. Parties wanting to procure tickets can get them at Byram & Poindexter's, No. 27 West First street.

LA PRESA!

The Beautiful Swiss Village on Lake Como

BEING REPRODUCED IN SAN DIEGO.

The most novel thing yet undertaken in the development of this southern country is now being done at LA PRESA, nine miles from San Diego. The plan is to reproduce in that delightful spot the counterpart of the celebrated Swiss village on Lake Como, in Northern Italy. To this end a railroad is being built to the place, and a fine modern hotel is to be erected at once. The situation is most delightful; far enough removed from the sea to escape rough winds, yet near enough to be always cool. With pure water, fine scenery, and the best of soil, LA PRESA is just the place to invest for a quick turn with big profits. LA PRESA is sure to grow rapidly, as it has all the elements to attract a select class of settlers.
